RAIL SERVICE THE ISSUE.

Whatever good has been accomplished in the peration of railroads either under private or overnmental control must be preserved to the benefit of the people. Mr. McAdoo's demand that ederal control be extended for five years furnishes subject upon both sides of which a great deal may be said. But no discussion, however extensive, should be permitted to obscure the chief railroad need-not of ownership or of control, but the need for adequate and reasonable service

While we scrupulously cleave to the demand or good service, we must not reject, but rather velcome, any benefits whether they come from the era of privately controlled roads or from the period of somewhat bitterly contested government direction.

THE TRIBUNE does not assume to approve of ing out of unified operation; but these reforms the public for approval or rejection, for it is the public that must be served:

Maintenance of the permit system so as to con rol traffic at its source.

Maintenance of heavy loads for cars.

Pooling of repair shops. Esimination of circuitous routes.

Unification of terminals.

Maintenance of the "sailing day plan." Consolidation of ticket offices.

Utilization of universal mileage tickets. Standardization of equipment

Maintenance of common time tables between in portant points.

Maintenance of high demurrage rates and un form rules.

Establishment of through way billing freight from point of origin to destination

Rendering unnecessary the rebilling by connect ing or intermediate routes. Elimination of the old practice of paying in mile age or per diem rental for the use of freight o nessenger cars of one carrier by another. Simplification of the old practice of apportioning nterline passenger revenue Utilization of water routes for the relief of crowded rail lines.

Mr. McAdoo says these reforms should be made nent, no matter what the future course of railroad control. Perhaps they should-perhaps only some of them; the public, which has had an enportunity of testing both private and govern nental service, is in a position to judge.

It is possible the director general leaves himself en to attack by making his suggestion almost in the form of a threat; that if the five year period understand that the powers of congress are greatly nfringed by McAdoo's ideas. But we do believe that uppermost in the mind of congress should he kept the idea that no matter what is done with the railroads anything that tends to the betternent of service should be retained and anything that conflicts with this movement should be dis-

SOCIAL DIPLOMACY.

President Wilson has met two gracious kings and the social value of the monarchical institutions which flourish in some of the democratic parts of Europe seems to be demonstrated for diplomatic purposes-if you can keep the kings from serving the country up à la Kubla Khan.

Social diplomacy has its graces and its significance. Great Britain would not permit King George to determine policies. Lloyd George does that. But Lloyd George came very nearly eating at the second table when social diplomacy under-

The French Room Introduces

The Millinery Modes of the New Season

From tailored hats of almost Spartan severity to garden hats of Victorian quaintness, the new modes in millinery range. That is fashion's decree. As they are presented here in the French Room they carry their own assurance of individuality, for each phase has received original and artistic interpretation.

Rose color straws embroidered in gray wools, brilliant green straw combined with white Angora, vividly tinted foulards, and pale-toned taffetas are employed to fashion the hats for outdoor pastime wear in the summerlands.

The leghorn hat comes early into vogue, for it is perfect accompaniment for the frocks light in color and fabric that are destined for afternoon and club veranda wear. Exquisite flowers, vivid silks and soft cream laces are used as garnitures, with charming effects.

A phase of this presentation of interest to all women is the display of hats for immediate wear here. Straw and satin are used together in small, high, close tailored hats. The new 1919 sailors characterized by high, softly draped crowns of rich satins make their first appearance.

Prices Begin at $15 and Range to $50.

Newest Arrivals Among Women's Suits Reveal the Fashions of Spring

THESE choice spring Suits possess styles so newly evolved and smart that not only will they be sought for Southern wear, but also for immediate Northern use under topcoats. A woman clad in one of these late models would have the assurance of being smartly attired. To check the topcoat and shop in a Suit is a relief from extra warmth while indoors.

A favored material is a beautiful light weight silvertone. From this the Suit in the center has been fashioned, with a roll collar opening low to reveal a duvetyn vest. Tiny corded tucks and arrow heads are the telling features of its careful tailoring. This model is in navy tricotine, too. $75. The Suit of navy tricotine pictured to the right, intrigues with the clever lines of its box coat, split at the sides, deeply trimmed with black silk braid, and finished with a straight tan duvetyn vest. $75.

The wool jersey Suit to the left, fashioned with a belted coat, is of particular importance in the "down-south" wardrobe. Its tricolette vestee has a collar of two possibilties - it will lie flat or button high. $67.50.

M'ADOO'S PLAN FOR RAILROADS BIG QUESTION

One Which Receives the Most Serious Consideration

[New York Times Financial Review.] York, Jan. 5 .- [Special.]-Whatever the individual opinion may be of Director General McAdoo's proposal for five years of government control of the railroade, the fact stands that his thoughts on the subject as detailed before the senate committee on interstate commerce last week gave the public matter for serious cogitation. Mr. McAdoo amplified his previous general observations on the railroad problem and in course of his testimony presented alternate programs which should be of use by raillar profiting their ideas on the subject. While cureful study of the director general's suggestions was made in banking and railroad circles, inquiry showed that few if any were convinced that the future of the carriers could not be decided in twenty-one months after the peace treaty was signed. Just the same it was clear than no wide disagreement between Mr. McAdoo's views on the particular details of the plan and the view of the bankers existed.

Accepted by Many.

NEW PROBLEMS PRESENTED FOR BOND MARKET

Must Meet Unusual Demands in Year Just Opening.

BY GLENN GRISWOLD.

The bond market of 1919 faces obligations far in excess of any limits established by its capacity in other years, yet bankers are confident that new financing will continue to be absorbed rapidly and some even predict that the present shortage of new investment merchandise will continue throughout the year. It is certain that none can tive powers of a market augmented by millions of Liberty bond buyers.

There will be a fifth Liberty loan that will command the release of five or six billion dollars. There will be maturities to meet beyond any previous record, and an enormous volume of foreign securities must be sold in this market if a new foreign trade is to be financed and America is to discharge her obligations

Foreign Loans Mature.

Maturities will amount to more than a billion and a half. Foreign securities alone amounting to $665,550,000 will mature during the year, and few of the nations obligated are ready to pay in cash. Some of these debts may be absorbed by the government, but that simply means that an equal additional amount of Liberty bonds must be sold.

Industrial maturities will amount $289,255,000, as compared to $184,000,000 naturities are comparatively normal a

Industrial maturities are of imminent interest. January's problems are nearly ail solved, but February presents demands for $88,300,000. The easy assumption that that amount is already invested and the refinancing causes no real burden is not sustained by experience. On a strong, active market it holds good. On weak markets or in the face of such impetition as has prevailed much of the last three years' refinancing is a genuine blem. Securities can always be sold, but the cost of money may prohibit bor-

The February bill includes $49,950,000 Bethlehem Steel two year notes, $15,-000,000 Remington Arms notes, and $15,-000,000 Westinghouse one year notes. International Finance Expected.

The distribution of foreign securities uring the year promises to give the American investor his first real taste of itnernational finance. In the past foreign securities were placed with in-stitutions and a few individuals of large means. The future promises that the nunfcipal bonds of Verdun or Rome or Brussels will be as intimately known

-Stop STORING in Files

Stop the assumption throughout your business that files are only for papers people are through with.

It's the activity of your files that speeds up your office. Any filing method will store tion-demanding records to circulate quickly between departments and executives, keeping them off desks. Amberg Indexes, which are based on the law of averages governing business names, make files fast, dependable and depended on. Distrusted files delay reference to, and the return of, documents. An Amberg Analysis will advise as to the application of the principles of ganization as it stands today. Amberg Cabinets, wood and steel, are standard —and the Indexes fit any make of cabinet. Send for "Applied Indexing," a book for business executives:

SITUATION WTD—AS STOCKKEEPER BY DISC

The government will announce this week an arrangement whereby the food administration will regulate trade in cotton linters, short cut cotton used in cotton linters, short cut cotton used in cotton linters, short cut cotton used in commally for bedding and upholstery and in war times for making guncotton. Prices have been fixed and control will list at least until government tinter contracts expire July 31, 1919, and probably a year longer.

The fact is of vital importance, not so much for its effect on the bedding industry as for the precedent it appears to set for government attitude toward all indutry, bewlidered by the sudden believed that the government would assume new obligations of price regulation.

Feared Ruls Was Ahead.

Ten days ago the majority of bedding manufacturers could see nothing ahead believed that the government officials and the war service committee of the National Bedding Manufacturers' association as to settlement of claims against the government are expected to end in a fair solution of remaining problems.

When the war began the government binance is a set the war and an imbroglic of munition contracts and supplies. The January Sales of 1919

The store itself is in a wonderfully favorable position to set a fitting record at the beginning of the New Year.

Merchandise for the January Sales of 1919, secured through plans that brought price advantages throughout well rounded out stocks, places emphasis upon these events as marking opportunity of the first order.

The January Sales include Women's Silk and Muslin Underwear, Household Linens, new fabrics of Cotton, Bed Sheets and Pillow Cases, Stamped Linens, Boys' Washable Suits and other lines of merchandise, in assortments as extensive as any in the January Sales of the past and comparatively as favorably priced as ever, in contrast to prevailing values.

January Sale of Blouses A Fashion Event of Price Advantage

Briefly defined the above exactly states what this splendid January occasion is. Now, fresh and dainty and lovely, come the newest modes in > Blouses Fashioned of Nets, Voiles, Batistes with Fine Tuckings, Beautiful Hand-work, Dainty Laces and Touches of Color.

In the accompanying illustration are four blouses typical in detail of the newest fashion features. Each is only one of many to choose from at its price.

At $3.95-batiste blouses with tucked Tuxedo front and flat tucked collars. Note the black cravat.

At $5.75—white batiste blouses with a new version of the flat frill emphasized by embroidered dots.

At $8.75-blouses of Tosca crepe in flesh or white with pochettes of white batiste tipped in pale blue.

At $10.75—white voile blouses with panels of net inset with bandings of real filet lace. Front and back alike.

Theodore Roosevelt

A Biography of COL. THEODORE ROOSEVELT TOLD IN PICTURES

At 18 years of age resolute boxing, wrestling and hunting had wrought a metamorphosis in his puny body; reading had developed his mind, and as a sophomore at Harvard he became one of the champion boxers and

In 1882, two years after he left Harvard, he took his first political office when he became a member of the New York State Assembly, attracting attention because of efforts on behalf of good government.

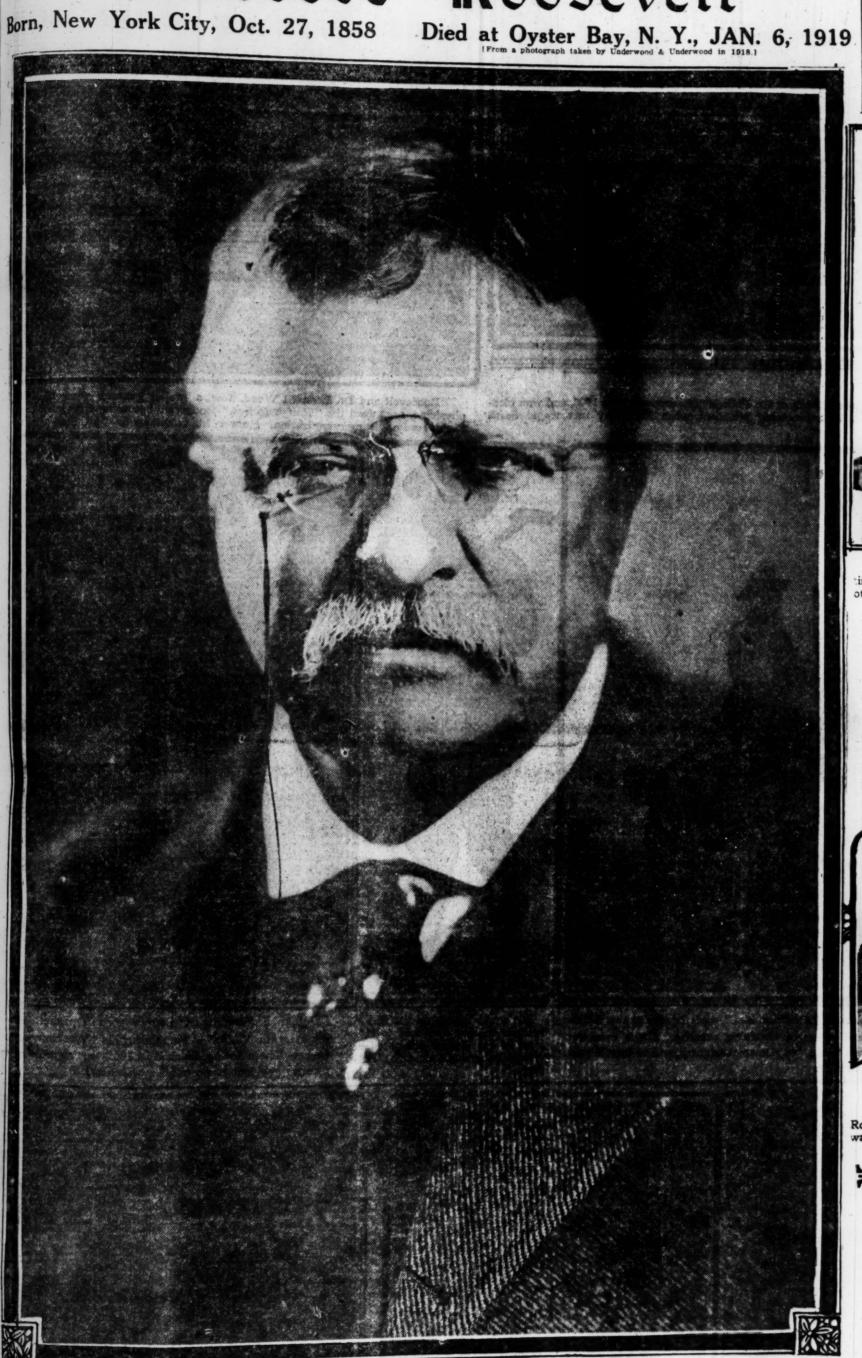

While famed as a scientist, literateur and man of learning, Roosevelt's great delight was in the "rough and ready." He was famed as a rider even in school days.

In 1884 he was chairman of the New York delegation to the Republican national convention at Chicago. In the same year he dropped out of politics temporarily and, purchasing ranches in North Dakota, divided his time between outdoor sports.

Riding and hunting and gathering data for his "plainsman" bc is, 1885, saw him as an active "cow hand."

With Cuba liberated, he was elected governor of New York in him the personal selection by 1899 and instituted reforms which President McKinley in 1897. earned him the hostility of cor-

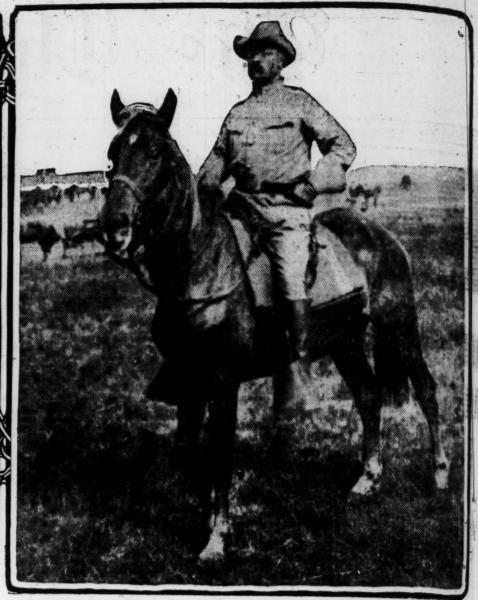

His fame as a reformer won as assistant secretary of the Honesty was the watch-word of his tenure as police commissioner, 1895-97, the two years being memorable through reforms inaugurated.

In 1889 President Harrison appointed him to the United States civil service commission.

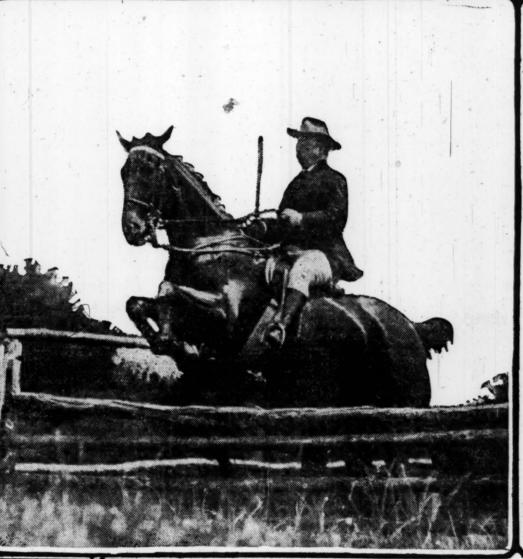

Upon McKinley's death Roosevelt endeavored to carry out the former's policies. Soon he became a presidential candidate and in 1904 was elected.

He was nominated as the Republican vice presidential candidate at the Philadelphia convention in 1900, and won election with President McKinley in November of that year, in 1901 becoming president when McKinley met tragic death at the hands of an assassin.

Roosevelt and Dr. Leonard Wood, now a major general, then McKinley's physician, organized the "Rough Riders," Roosevelt becoming lieutenant colonel of this ready fighting organization. He won his colonelcy in the Cuban campaign

He was practically able to dictate the nomination of William Howard Taft as the Republican presidential nominee in 1908, the latter winning over Bryan. The colonel then left on a long hunting trip in Africa. Later he toured the capitals of Europe.

While "Teddy" had expert boxers to "condition him" while he was at the White House, his saddle horses were his chief means of obtaining exercise. He is even recorded as having left cabinet meetings "cold" to ride cross country, and no hurdle was too high or too difficult for him to attempt.

He could swing an ax like a veteran lumber jack and to this form of exercise he attributed in no small degree his massive shoul-

John S. Sargent, the famous portrait painter, induced the energetic "T. R." to pose during his White House incumbency. The painting, finished in 1903, was regarded by the former president as an excellent likeness.

He probably had received more honorary university degrees than any living American, he being honored both in this country and in Europe. He is shown receiving degrees at Cambridge.

When in Germany on his European tour the former president met the now former Kaiser Wilhelm, the imperial German ruler even holding a grand review of his armies for Roosevelt's benefit. On horseback by the kaiser's side Roosevelt saw pass the great hordes which later were to be loosed on the world.

While president he sent the American grand fleet on its memorable trip 'round the world and convinced other countries that America's naval forces were no small thing to be trifled with. He is shown on the deck of Admiral "Fighting Bob" Evans' flagship.

In penetrating Africa on his hunting expedition he crossed the Sahara desert on a camel and had a great retinue of natives. It was on this trip that he is believed to have contracted the baffling disease which finally resulted in death.
